

Jiji vs Jumia

What It Means For AVAZONIA

A simple, non-technical guide for decision makers.
How Ghanas two biggest marketplaces work - and how
Avazonia can take the best of both without the mistakes.

Focus
Ghana - Vendor / Seller Model

This is not a technical document. No jargon. Just how it works, how money is made, and what Avazonia should copy - and avoid.

Why We Compared Jiji & Jumia

Avazonia is not building just an online shop. We are building a mall - a place where many different sellers can open shops, and Avazonia itself also has its own shop inside the same building.

Think of it like a mall

Avazonia owns the mall - the building, the security, the lights, the customers coming through the door.

Sellers rent space - they bring their own products, set their own prices, and pay Avazonia a small fee when they make a sale.

Avazonia also sells - we have our own shop inside our own mall. Customers see all products together and choose the best deal, whether it is from Avazonia or another seller.

Ghanas two biggest examples work very differently. One is like a notice board (Jiji). The other is like a supermarket checkout (Jumia). Avazonia needs to be both - intelligently.

We studied both in Ghana to answer one question: How should Avazonia handle sellers, money, and delivery - without making the mistakes they made?

The key question for Avazonia

Should Avazonia touch the money and the delivery, or just connect buyer and seller?

Answer: Both - but for different products.

How Jiji Works

In one sentence: Jiji is a free notice board. Anyone can pin their item for free. When someone is interested, they call the seller directly. Jiji does not handle money or delivery.

1. Pin it	Seller posts an ad - photos, price, category. Free. Takes 3 minutes. No shop needed.	Example: "Toyota Corolla 2010 - GHS 45,000 - Accra"
2. Wait	Buyer finds and calls - via phone or chat inside Jiji. They negotiate price directly.	No checkout button. Just "Call" or "Chat"
3. Meet	They meet or arrange delivery themselves - Jiji does not deliver. No guarantee.	Meet in public place, pay on inspection
4. Promote (optional)	Seller pays to be seen more - "Boost" puts ad at top for 3 days. From GHS 20.	Free = invisible. Paid = seen 100x more

How does Jiji make money if listing is free?

Boost / Top Ad Pay to appear at top GHS 20 - 200	VIP Subscription Monthly fee for big dealers Up to $1,200/mo	Banner Ads Samsung/Toyota pay to advertise	New: Lead Fees $12-45 per serious buyer (cars/houses)

OK What works	X What does not
- Anyone can start selling in 3 minutes - Zero fees - great for small sellers - 45M visits/month, 85% on phone - huge audience - Good for cars, houses, used items	- No payment protection - scams happen - No delivery - seller must handle it - No guarantee - buyer may not show up - If you do not pay to boost, nobody sees you

Bottom line: Jiji is cheap to start, but Avazonia cannot rely on this alone - we need to handle money and delivery for most products, or customers will not trust us.

How Jumia Works

In one sentence: Jumia is a supermarket checkout. Seller puts product on shelf, buyer pays Jumia, Jumia delivers, then Jumia pays seller (minus a small fee). Everything is tracked.

1. Register	Seller registers - Ghana Card or business papers + bank account. 5 minutes. Free. Must do training.	Verified - not anyone can sell
2. List	Upload products - photos, price, stock. Jumia checks quality before it goes live.	Bad photos = rejected
3. Sell	Buyer pays on Jumia - card, mobile money, or cash on delivery. Money goes to Jumia first.	Seller does not touch money yet
4. Deliver & Get Paid	Jumia delivers & pays seller weekly - after deducting fee. Seller sees statement.	Payout every 7 days to bank

How does Jumia make money?

Commission 5% - 20% of sale price By category	Example Fashion 20%: You want GHS 950 Buyer pays GHS 1,198 Jumia keeps GHS 248	Other fees Storage, ads (Sponsored Products) Penalties for late/cancelled orders

Categories: Electronics 5-8% - Fashion 15-20% - Home 10% (Ghana 2026, VAT included). No monthly fee. You only pay when you sell.

Dropship You keep stock You bring package to Jumia hub when order comes	Jumia Express Jumia keeps stock in their warehouse They pack & deliver for you
--	---

OK What works	X What does not
- Buyer trusts - money protected - Delivery handled (1,300+ hubs) - Weekly payout with statement - Training + support	- Commission on every sale - Strict rules - late = penalty - Must keep stock accurate or get delisted - Small sellers struggle with fees

Side-by-Side: The Simple Difference

Use this table when someone asks: 'Are we like Jiji or Jumia?' - Answer: Both, on purpose.

Feature	Jiji Notice Board	Jumia Supermarket Checkout	Avazonia Best of Both
How buyer & seller meet	Buyer calls seller directly	Buyer pays Jumia, never talks to seller	Both - depends on product
Who handles money?	They pay each other	Jumia holds money	Avazonia holds for normal orders For cars/machines, they pay each other
Who delivers?	Seller does	Jumia does (or seller drops to hub)	Seller drops to hub Later: Avazonia Express
Cost to seller	Free to list Pay only to be seen	Free to list 5-20% when you sell	Free to list Commission only when you sell Boost to be seen (optional)

Feature	Jiji Notice Board	Jumia Supermarket Checkout	Avazonia Best of Both
Who can sell?	Anyone in 3 minutes	After verification + training	After verification (we check you first)
Risk for buyer	Higher - no protection	Lower - protected	Low - protected for normal orders
Best for	Cars, houses, used items	New products, electronics, fashion	Everything - we split by type

In short: Jiji = cheap to start, risky to buy. Jumia = trusted to buy, expensive to sell. Avazonia is Jiji freedom + Jumia trust.

What This Means For Avazonia

We will not copy one. We will combine - and add what neither has: Avazonia own shop inside the mall.

PATH A - Pay on Avazonia For phones, electronics, fashion, home - normal products Buyer pays Avazonia -> Avazonia delivers -> Avazonia pays seller (minus fee) Like Jumia. Trusted.	PATH B - Talk to Seller For cars, machines, big solar, services - expensive/custom Buyer clicks "Contact Vendor" -> talks directly -> they agree Like Jiji. Flexible.

Admin decides which category uses which path. Example: 'Samsung Galaxy' -> Path A. '2020 Haval H6 - USD 6,600 FOB' -> Path B. This is exactly what the client asked for in Section 23.

Why this is smarter than copying either:

For Customers	For Sellers	For Avazonia
- One place for everything - Can compare Avazonia own products vs others - Protected when paying on site - Can negotiate for big items	- Free to list (like Jiji) - Only pay when you sell (like Jumia) - Can still sell big items without platform handling money - Gets seen by many buyers	- Earns commission (Path A) - Earns boost/lead fees (Path B) - No need to stock everything - Can still sell own stock for higher margin

Add the piece neither has well: Avazonia Owned - our own verified shop. Customers see OK Avazonia Owned badge and trust it more. We earn full margin there, and we learn what sells before inviting other sellers for that product.

This is the 'mall with its own shop' - Jiji and Jumia do not have it. It is Avazonia advantage.

How Avazonia Will Make Money

Simple rule: Listing is free. You pay only when you earn. This is what makes sellers join (Jiji lesson) and stay (Jumia lesson).

1. Commission When buyer pays on Avazonia 5-20% by category e.g. phone 6%, fashion 20%	2. Boost Seller pays to be seen at top for 3 days Optional - like Jiji Top Ad	3. Leads For cars/houses, seller pays per serious buyer GHS 30-100 per lead	4. Own Sales Avazonia own shop Keeps full profit No commission - all ours

What we will not do at launch (to keep it simple):

- No monthly shop rent - opening a shop is free (like both Jiji and Jumia).
- No warehouse needed at first - seller keeps their stock, just brings package to hub when order comes (Dropship). Jumia Express warehouses come later if we need them.

- No forcing - seller can use any delivery. Later Avazonia can offer its own delivery as an option.

This keeps costs low for Avazonia and for sellers - exactly what made Jiji grow to 45M visits.

Example: How seller sets price (so they do not lose money):

If a dress seller wants GHS 950 in her pocket, and commission is 20% + GHS 8 delivery, what should she list it for?

(950 + 8) ? (1 - 0.20) = GHS 1,198

Buyer pays 1,198 -> Avazonia keeps 248 -> seller gets 950 + 8 delivery

We will give sellers a calculator - like Jumia does - so they never guess.

What It Will Look Like

Two simple journeys - no tech words.

For a Buyer (customer)

For a Seller (shop owner)

Both sides are simple. No warehouse, no monthly fees, no complex training at launch. Just like Jiji ease, with Jumia trust where it matters.

OK Avazonia Owned Sold by us Highest trust	OK Verified Vendor Checked by us Trusted seller	STAR Avazonia Choice Best products Chosen by us	SHIELD Buyer Protection Money protected On Path A orders

Next Steps - Simple Timeline

We will not build everything at once. We start simple, like Jiji did - then add Jumia-like power as we grow.

Phase 1 - Now Weeks 1-6 OK Categories & subcategories (done) OK Seller badges & Avazonia Owned OK Search & filters OK Manual seller creation (admin adds sellers) You see: Mall looks real, trust badges work, no self-registration yet	Phase 2 - Soon Weeks 6-14 - Sellers apply & get Verified - Sellers upload products - Orders split by seller - Weekly payouts - Contact Vendor for cars/machines You see: Real sellers, real money flow	Phase 3 - Later When needed - Sponsored products (pay to boost) - Avazonia Express delivery - Full promotions (Black Friday) - Reports & analytics You see: Scale - like Jumia at full power

Our recommendation for Avazonia

Start like Jiji (free to list, easy to join) - this brings sellers quickly.

Operate like Jumia where money is involved (hold money, weekly payout, commission) - this brings buyer trust.

Keep Avazonia Owned as your special advantage - neither Jiji nor Jumia has this. It lets you make full profit on key products and learn the market first.

This is the lowest risk, highest trust way. We have already built the foundation: SQLite fallback, category drill-down, seller structure ready.

Questions? We can walk through this in 15 minutes - no tech talk, just business.
